

What does the “Green” in GMN mean?

- Green represents sound and music based on nature’s patterns of resonance. Resonance as a guide for living our lives.
- The sound of nature is acoustic, and so Green also represents tools and instruments that produce acoustic resonance, with an accompanying focus on earth based materials.
- A sustainable society in which our human footprint is in resonance with the earth, and other creatures, will come - is coming into view only through a transformation in consciousness. An awareness of “being”, a new form of authenticity – a shift to resonance with all life. Our individual and group actions will come from this place, for a new earth. And so we at GMN play with resonance as one of many tools for transformation coming into play around the globe.
